

Privacy Policy Statement

This is the web site of Knife Rights, Inc.
The publisher can be reached via email

We believe that electronic privacy is crucial for the ongoing success of the Internet as a service, commercial and entertainment medium.

For each visitor to our Web pages, our Web server automatically recognizes only the visitor's domain name (where possible), but not the email address.

We collect only the domain name, but not the email address, of visitors to our Web site and aggregate information on what pages visitors access or visit. Our Web site logs are not personally identifiable, and we make no attempt to link them with the individuals that actually browse the site. "Cookies" are used to track this information.

The information we collect is used for internal review to improve the content of our Web site with aggregate information regarding traffic to the site and specific pages on the site and is then discarded. No one will be able to identify you or contact you.

If you provide us your personal and contact information to be included on an email notification list or to join Knife Rights, Inc. as a member, this information will be kept confidential and will not be used or collected for the purposes of reselling to a third party and will not be added to a bulk emailing list. To have us remove you from our email list or member database, please contact the publisher via email. Please be sure to include enough information so that we can find your data to delete.

Any email addresses or personal information sent to us as the result of correspondence will be kept confidential and will not be used or collected for the purposes of reselling to a third party and will not be added to a bulk emailing list. We will not contact you subsequent to replying to your original email unless specifically requested. We do not retain email addresses from correspondence in any sort of list, though we may save the correspondence to an archive file for our in-house use only. This correspondence will never be made available to any third party unless specifically requested by you or as a result of a legal subpoena. If you would prefer that we delete your email address and/or personal information from an email we may archive, please indicate so in the email and we will comply. To have us de-identify or delete any emails from you that we may have archived, please contact the publisher via email. Please be sure to include enough information so that we can find the email, including your email address and the subject and approximate date of the email if possible.

Cookies: The tracking and statistics software uses "cookies" to store and track information about you. A cookie is a small amount of data that is sent to your browser from a Web server and stored on your hard drive. Cookies are only read by the server that placed them there. They are unable to execute any code or virus and none of your personally identifiable information is stored on the cookies we serve. For more information on cookies, visit the Cookie Central FAQ.

NOTE: The privacy policies of Web sites linked from this site may be less restrictive than our own. Ensure the policies of these Web sites and companies are acceptable to you before providing personal information.